From San Diego, head south on Interstate 5 towards the border. After crossing the border, you will go up and over a bridge over a large aqueduct. At the top of that bridge will be a turn off to the right that says Rosarito Ensenada (or something similar to that). Take that right turn - according to the map, you will be on Av Internacional (although you'll not see any signs that say that). You will go up and over a large hill. Once you go over the top and head back down, get in the right lane - you will take the next exit on the right. This will put you on Ctra Ensenada-Tijuana Hwy. 1D which will take you through the town of Rosarito all the way to Ensenada. There are three toll booths on this road, each costing approximately $2.50 (US), and they do take US currency. Continue south 70 miles to Ensenada. After crossing through the third toll booth, you will travel approximately 1 mile. You will see an exit with signs saying "Ruta del Vino" or "Ruta Vinicola" or "Tecate". Take that exit and cross back over the highway (east) on the Tecate-Ensenada Highway and go 1 mile - look for the tall white wall and the City of Children entrance on your left.
